Governor Jan Brewer has appointed three new members to the Arizona State Retirement System Board of Trustees. Each appointee has been confirmed by the State Senate, with the new members joining the nine-member board immediately.

New Trustees are:

Dennis L. Hoffman, professor of economics and director of the L. Wm. Siedman Research Institute, W.P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University. Dr. Hoffman will be the board's representative for Educators.

Thomas Manos, a former deputy chief of staff for finance in the Brewer administration. Mr. Manos will be the board's member-at-large representative.

Kevin McCarthy, president of the Arizona Tax Research Association. Mr. McCarthy will be one of four representatives for the public.

Departing Trustees are Jaime Gutierrez, a vice president at the University of Arizona, who served on the board since 2004; Dr. Keith Meredith, a retired professor from the University of Arizona, who served on the board since 2003; and James McLaughlin, president of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 99, who served on the board since 2007.

The Board of Trustees oversees the administration of the ASRS and is represented by members in the following areas: an educator, an employee of a political subdivision, a retired member, an employee of the state, an at-large member and four members who represent the public.

Four members are also required to have a minimum of 10 years of experience in the fields of investment, finance or economics.
